FAA Cert MO4R369M

THE FOLLOWING IS THE WARRANTY POLICY OF AIRCRAFT ELECTRIC MOTORS:

"Aircraft Electric Motors, Inc. warranties that all complete rewinds, repairs, and replacement parts will be free from defects for the same period of time as that of the original manufacturer's warranty on new or rewound units. This does NOT include extended warranty plans bought for new aircraft from their manufacturer.

In cases where Aircraft Electric Motors makes the decision to repair an item, rather than to rewind an item, failure during the warranty period will be honored by our crediting the amount of the repair charge against the rewind cost. The warranty period as described in paragraph one will begin again at the time of new shipment.

This warranty does NOT cover parts damaged by extraneous causes such as, but not limited to, bearing failure, single phasing, improper installation, improper storage, shipping damage, etc. All decisions to grant warranty claims are at the sole discretion of Aircraft Electric Motors.

In no case will Aircraft Electric Motors be responsible for the cost of repairs by others on parts still in warranty.

In no case will Aircraft Electric Motors be responsible for consequential damages of any kind - either to attaching parts, or for losses incurred due to grounding of aircraft, scheduling losses, or for labor and disassembly costs.

Aircraft Electric Motors warranties that all parts rewound or repaired by our facility will be accomplished in a workmanlike manner, according to factory specifications or by specifications equal or superior to those of the original manufacturer. In ALL cases materials installed will be equal to, or superior to, those used in original manufacture.

Aircraft Electric Motors certifies that no repairs will be accomplished by us that are not specifically granted in our F.A.A. Repair Station Certificate.

All materials returned for warranty will be f.o.b. Aircraft Electric Motors, Inc."
